My message

- Doing inner work to know thyself is the number one responsibility of human beings.
- Being human is a combination of possibilities; we always have more choices than we can see and think.
- We are the authors of our life story and each one of us matters; we have to take our part and it is not our business to judge ourselves whether we are not competent enough or smart enough.
- The one and only thing we can be sure to change is ourselves.
- Free individuals create strong teams thus smart organizations.
- Organizations are organic complex systems and all kinds of conversations make them who they are.
- Leadership is about creating meaning and inspiring people around that meaning.
